

Subsidized Transportation for School Visits to Intel

Subsidized transportation for Intel Tours is a grant to Oregon and Washington school districts to offset transportation costs to the Intel Oregon Information Center. The funding is provided by annual grants by the Intel Corporation and are administered by the NWRESD Technology Department.

Tour the Intel Oregon Information Center (IOIC) with Your Class

IOIC is located in Hillsboro at Intel's Jones Farm Campus
2111 NE 25th, Hillsboro, OR 97124
Jones Farm Conference Center (Building JF3)

The Intel Oregon Information Center (IOIC) helps explain the "High Tech" world and Oregon site operations for students, while exciting them about the many opportunities found with the semiconductor industry. Teachers of 5th grade and above are invited to bring students for a tour of the Intel Oregon Information Center. Spend a couple of hours learning about Intel and new technology. During the tour students learn about microprocessors; how they work, are made and used. Take a look at our Exhibits page to learn about our current tour exhibits and activities. In addition, they will see how computers change lives and how they will be used in the future. Students begin to visualize themselves as the next generation of engineers who design and create the future world of technology.
